

A Personal Response

Hello saints,

My name is Lilly Faulk. I'm graduating from Case Western Reserve University this year, and I wanted to share a way in which Titus' sharing in the first video relates to what I've been going through with the Lord.

For the past few months I've been thinking about my life after I graduate. I had a heart to serve Him, but I felt that the only way to serve Him fully was to be a full-timer. If I got a job, then serving Him would become secondary rather than the focus of my life. Like Titus shared in this video, without a clear vision, my life for the Lord would be dictated by outward circumstances, such as whether I have a job or whether I serve full-time. I've realized that when I have a vision, it doesn't matter what my outward circumstances are; the vision will decide how I live. I've been seeing that my life is for the Lord's desire for people. Now I feel joyful knowing that wherever I end up next year, my life can be lived for the Lord whom I love.

Titus talked about having an uncommon life. In this uncommon life, we have all of the things necessary for living, but we shouldn't have room to ignore the Lord's voice while pursuing those things. Outwardly, my life may be similar to any other life, but my living must be directed by the current vision provided by the Lord. He has been drawing me to live my life based on this current vision.
